

PROFESSIONAL DOCTORATE OF POLITICAL SCIENCE

Political Science professional Doctorate Programme aims to train researchers in the field of political science and International Relations. The students graduated from the program, which includes such disciplines as Political Theory, Comparative Politics, Political History, International Relations and Politics, will be able to conduct broad theoretical and empirical studies in these areas.

With the doctoral dissertations to be produced in these fields, doctoral candidates will be trained to analyses on local and global political issues as well as will be able to understand the transformation dynamics of both global and local politics. In a rapidly changing world new types of political organization are emerging in the international system and researches have to be conducted to facilitate our understanding of this fundamental transformation. The Program aims to produce theoretical innovations on the essential issues of politics by producing not only the spirit of the time but also the time-prolonged political knowledge.
